About British Skydiving

British Skydiving, then British Parachute Association (BPA), was founded in 1961, is the not-for-profit National Governing Body of Skydiving (Sport Parachuting) in the UK. Skydiving is one of the most exciting and exhilarating sports in the world.

We have over 6,000 full members, and nearly 60,000 student members each year. We also have around 28 British Skydiving Affiliated Parachute Training Organisations (PTOs) throughout the UK who affiliate to us to set and maintain standards of safety and training. The small staff team of 10 full-time equivalents, led by Tony Butler, Chief Operating Officer, is based at our Leicester headquarters.

British Skydiving is a member of the Royal Aero Club of the United Kingdom and we represent the UK on the International Parachuting Commission of Fédération Aéronautique Internationale, the World Air Sports Federation.

British Skydiving sets and maintains standards of safety and training for skydiving at British Skydiving Affiliated Parachute Training Organisations and in British Skydiving Registered Display Teams. These are set out in the British Skydiving Operations Manual and other safety documents. We also publish a members' magazine, Skydive the Mag, six times a year, together with various technical and training manuals and booklets. We also organise Skydive the Expo on the day of the British Skydiving AGM, usually the last Saturday in January.

Our mission is to secure safety, promote our passion and encourage excellence - and values.

Each individual Council member is unlikely individually to have all of the skills, knowledge and expertise to govern British Skydiving effectively. Council is made up of 10 Elected and 2 Independent Council members plus any co-opted members, with officials and advisers on hand to discharge its responsibilities appropriately. Council Members must therefore need to work effectively as part of this team - which should be more than the sum of its parts.
